FEDERAL JUDGES HIT WALLACE

JFK REPORTS:

Viet Nam Aid Is Necessary

Washington (P) — A reduction of U.S. financial aid to South Viet Nam might bring about collapse of that nation and open the gates to a Communist takeover in Southeast Asia, President Kennedy said Monday night.

The President said in a television-radio interview that he subscribes to the so-called "domino theory" concerning Viet Nam and Southeast Asia.

"China is so large, looms so high just beyond the frontiers, that if South Viet Nam went, it would not only give them an improved geographic position for a guerrilla assault on Malaya, but would also give them the impression that the wave of the future in Southeast Asia was China and the Communists," Kennedy said.

Indirect Answer

The President's views came as an indirect answer to mounting congressional sentiment for a sharp cutback in aid to the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Still, Kennedy said, the United States is concerned about repressions of Buddhists by the Vietnamese regime of President Diem. He said:

"We are using our influence to persuade the government there to take those steps which will win back support. That takes some time and we must be patient, we must persist."

He declined to say what role the Central Intelligence Agency is playing in Viet Nam. But he denied that the CIA tends to make its own policy, independent of the administration, adding:

"We would like to have Cambodia, Thailand and South Viet Nam all in harmony, but there are ancient differences there. We can't make the world over, but we can influence the world."

School Enrollment Up At Least 3,500

It appeared Monday that Lincoln Public School's first-day enrollment might exceed 1962's figure by at least 3,500.

According to the office of Superintendent Steven Watkins, enrollment totaled 26,775 at noon Monday, with afternoon figures unavailable until Tuesday.

Approximately 1,600 were expected to enroll in after-

Attorney 'Hopeful' As Annex Dispute Goes To School Board

The attorney representing parents of children assigned to Meadow Lane School's controversial Annex 2 described himself as "hopeful" on the eve of Tuesday morning's confrontation with the Board of Education.

Warren K. Urbom, speaking for the parents, said:

"We want to try to work out a solution to the problem. We understand that the school administration has problems. We're hopeful we can suggest a workable solution."

The parents are protesting a school administration decision assigning their children, about 100 in all, to a six-house school annex at 84th and Elizabeth rather than to the school proper.

The children reside in an area east of Colony Lane and

Dirksen Throws Weight Behind Test-Ban Treaty

... KENNEDY TO SEND ASSURANCES

Washington (P) — Republican Senate leader Everett M. Dirksen threw the weight of his prestige behind the limited nuclear test-ban treaty as debate opened Monday on ratification of the pact.

The Illinois senator also revealed that President Kennedy will send the Senate a letter in a day or two giving "unequivocal assurances" that the pact will not mean any relaxation in U.S. security measures.

Dirksen's actions, with support from some other Republicans, buoyed administration hopes for a solid bipartisan backing for the treaty despite opposition to it by some influential southern Democrats on the Senate Armed Services Committee.

After Chat

The GOP leader revealed his stand as he emerged from a 45-minute White House discussion of the treaty with President Kennedy. Senator Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Shortly afterward, the show-down debate was opened by Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He strongly urged ratification in a lengthy speech frequently interrupted by questions.

The debate is expected to run for about two weeks before the final vote in which two-thirds of those voting must approve the treaty if it is to be ratified.

Fulbright said the treaty will not of itself break "the fatal cycle of fear and armaments and greater fear and finally war." But he said it could "in some small measure mitigate the fears and suspicions of the cold war and perhaps in time lead to further measures of limited accommodation."

"If the treaty is carried out," he said, "it could lead gradually to an entirely new relationship with Russia."

Dirksen told newsmen his support "has probably been envisioned" from his earlier less definite comments. He announced "I'll support the treaty" and added he feels it will get the necessary majority.

He'll Use It

At a later news conference, Dirksen said if Kennedy's letter to Mansfield is forthcoming Tuesday he will use it as

Governor Must Stop Blocking Integration

... JFK WITHHOLDS FURTHER ACTION

Montgomery, Ala. (P) — A spokesman for Gov. George C. Wallace ordered U.S. marshals from the capitol grounds early Tuesday and then sent National Guardsmen on a search of the grounds to make certain they had gone.

Finance Director Seymour Trammell appeared on the capitol steps surrounded by state troopers and National Guardsmen. He told the officers, as newsmen stood by:

"I have given instructions to the federal marshals to leave the area. Now you will search the grounds and clear the area."

"Gov. Wallace gave these orders and I will carry them out."

Three marshals stood and heard the comments.

They paused momentarily while the guardsmen began to form.

Then they turned and strode away, moving toward the back of the capitol.

Some 300 National Guardsmen are still federalized as a result of University of Alabama integration last June 11 when Wallace gave up a doorway stand only when the troops arrived.

The temporary restraining order came at the request of the Justice Department.

Wallace stood aside and allowed four Huntsville schools to desegregate but later hinted he may yet seek to get the Negroes out.

Monday night's restraining order was signed by District Judges Seybourn Lynne, H. Hobart Grooms and Clarence Allgood, all of Birmingham; Frank M. Johnson Jr., of Montgomery; and Daniel H. Thomas of Mobile.

And President Kennedy said he would take whatever action is needed to see that the desegregation orders are enforced.

Helmeted state troopers who earlier in the day had let white students in but refused to admit Negroes to five schools in the three cities were reported being pulled out.

Guard Instead

In their place Tuesday, said official sources close to the governor, will be National Guard troops who could be federalized instantly and ordered to escort the Negroes into school.

Hours after a temporary restraining order had been signed by all five U.S. district judges in Alabama, prohibiting the governor and other state authorities from further intervention at the schools, U.S. marshals were trying to get Wallace to serve notice of the order on him. He conferred with his advisors for hours.

He was guarded by two dozen state troopers, some of them newly arrived in Montgomery from duty stations at the schools where Negroes sought in vain to enter.

Doors Locked

The governor emerged briefly from his private office and chatted with the troopers in the reception room — still behind locked doors. The federal marshals waited outside the building.

The governor's refusal to admit Negroes to five schools in the three cities Monday morning also brought him face to face again with the prospect of White House intervention.

U.S. Troops Speculated

There was speculation, too, that continued resistance by the governor might bring federal troops into the three cities to get the Negroes into school.

Kennedy, mindful that school boards in all four cities have agreed to comply with the federal court decrees, said he is still hopeful that Wallace will allow the local communities to meet their responsibilities.

Technically, as far as the boards were concerned, the schools were open in the three cities where the governor intervened. But the presence of state troopers massed at the doors kept five Negroes away in Birmingham, two at Mobile and 13 at Tuskegee.

The President said the federal government will step in "only if Gov. Wallace complies it."

Challenged

In Montgomery, Wallace issued a prepared statement challenging Kennedy's remarks. He said nowhere in the south have schools been integrated without "force of the federal government or threat of force."

The governor said he is willing to let local communities decide between segregation and integration "if President Kennedy and the Justice Department will do likewise — for they are the federal government centered in Washington, and if they stay out, so will I."

"Then," the statement added, "if any local community wants to integrate, then it is a matter for them to so decide, but if they want to continue segregation, then likewise that should be their choice . . .

"The federal government's forced action in the matter is the root of the entire trouble."

At Huntsville, heart of the nation's missile program, four Negroes went to class with white students in the first breakdown of public elementary-high school barriers in the state's long and turbulent history.

Monroe Girl, 6, Killed; Darter Into Car's Path

Monroe (P) — A 6-year-old Monroe girl died Monday afternoon of injuries suffered when she was struck by a car.

State Safety Patrol trooper Cecil Hoeman identified her as Kathy Ann Edmison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Edmison of Monroe.

The trooper said the child darted across Neb. 22 in Monroe into the path of a car driven by Archie Torson, 37, of St. Edward.

The trooper quoted witnesses who said Torson had just met a truck on the highway. Witnesses said the girl had run out from behind the truck.

The death raised the 1963 Nebraska traffic death toll to 220, compared to 247 on Sept. 9, one year ago.

FRESH CRISIS GRIPS LAOS

... Gun And Grenade Battle Leaves Vientiane Restless

Vientiane, Laos (AP) — A fresh crisis, described as "dangerous and explosive," gripped Laos Monday after a two-hour gun and grenade battle 100 yards from the American Embassy between right-wing forces and pro-Communist Pathet Lao troops.

An embassy spokesman said no Americans were hurt and the building was not hit.

Neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma put off his trip to the U.N. Assembly session in New York and a right-wing communique charged the Pathet Lao provoked the shooting to bring this about. It said Souvanna intended to expose Communist interference in Laos during his trip and therefore the Pathet Lao was determined to prevent it.

An Excuse

Diplomats said they feared the Pathet Lao might use the battle, in which one of their men was killed, as an excuse to re-open fighting elsewhere — probably in the tense Plain des Jarres area.

The clash touched off a flurry of diplomatic activity, which resulted in a decision to evacuate the 100-man Pathet Lao unit stationed in this right-wing controlled capital to protect pro-Communist members of the coalition government.

Laos is ruled by a neutralist prime minister with right-wing and Pathet Lao deputies.

Arrangements were announced for a plane to come in from Hanoi, capital of neighboring Communist Viet Nam, and fly the soldiers to areas controlled by the Pathet Lao.

Their departure is expected to ease tension which has fallen over the city — calm for months past — since the shooting Monday morning. On the other hand, it obviously will deepen the split between the Pathet Lao on one side and the neutralists and right-wingers on the other. Thus, Western sources said, the current crisis could be termed "dangerous and explosive."

Pathet Lao sources accused the right-wingers of opening fire on Pathet Lao men at their downtown barracks-villa. These sources said the Pathet Lao fired back in self-defense. The rightist communique said the Pathet Lao started the shooting and grenade-throwing.

Sealed Off

Right-wing troops promptly sealed off the Communist Chinese and North Vietnamese embassies, also in the same area. The Chinese could move in and out freely, but the North Vietnamese were kept indoors. Troops also guarded the cable and radio station. All shops closed and traffic practically stopped as gun-shy citizens stayed home.

The rightist communique said one Pathet Lao soldier was killed during the gun battle, but there were no right-wing casualties.

Bienvinito Natividad, a Filipino national working with Operation Brotherhood at a hospital here, was fatally wounded when right-wing forces machine gunned his jeep as he was riding through a market place. A Brotherhood spokesman said Natividad, who was married only three months ago, received bullets in the chest and died a few hours after being taken to a hospital. The spokesman said a Laotian riding with Natividad was slightly wounded in the thigh.

MOTHERS WATCH . . . as schoolboys are arrested.

Viet Nam Schoolboys Battle Combat Police

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP) — Vietnamese schoolboys fought a 10-minute hand-to-hand battle with combat police Monday in fresh defiance of the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem. Police arrested about 750 of the students and hauled them away in trucks.

The students had barricaded themselves inside Chu Van boys high school and had gone on strike to enforce demands for the release of about 300 boys and girls arrested Saturday after a demonstration against the government.

Soon afterward, a battalion of combat-ready infantry troops and a unit of combat police surrounded the school. The combat police burst through the school gate — barricaded by two basketball backboards and desks — and rushed at the students with clubs and fists swinging. The boys fought back and the melee lasted 10 minutes before police subdued them.

Hauled Away

Then, trucks bearing the U.S.-South Vietnamese friendship insignia drove up and the students were hauled away.

A military communique said later students over 20 would be drafted into the army and those under that age would be sent to special "re-education centers." In the military governor of Saigon, Brig. Gen. Ton That Dinh, warned parents they would be held responsible for their children's activities and would have to pay for their keep at the centers.

He also said pupils guilty of repeatedly demonstrating may be tried by military courts, which are empowered to impose death sentences.

Blame Reds

The military governor blamed the uprising on the Communist guerrillas, Viet Cong, who have been fighting Diem's regime in the jungles and hamlets. The United States is helping the Diem government in the war. The friendship insignia on police trucks stems from this aid.

During the demonstration, the white-shirted students shouted insults at police and soldiers. They displayed blackboards from the school windows with chalk-written slogans assailing Diem's government.

But as for slashing U.S. assistance to the guerrillas, the spokesman said Phillips said official dispatches from Saigon paralleled press reports that Vietnamese government forces were roughly hauling off to jail high school boys striking against Diem policies.

"We assume that the students were showing how they felt about the previous arrests of university students and the other repressive measures taken by the Vietnamese government in recent weeks," Phillips said.

But as for slashing U.S. assistance to the guerrillas, the spokesman said Phillips said

"Get pictures of that emblem. I want the people back in the states to see that."

Cop Hurt

One policeman, presumably hit by rock in the melee, was seen taken into Saigon police hospital on a stretcher.

Student opposition to the government stems from the five-month-old feud that Buddhists have been carrying on with Diem. Buddhist activity has died down since students opened their opposition.

The government imposed martial law in Saigon Aug. 21 after raiding several Buddhist pagodas. Four days later, Saigon University students attempted a mass demonstration but police broke it up before it started. About 1,500 were arrested. The government says all have been released.

U.S. Pokes Vietnamese Again; No Aid Slice Yet

Washington (AP) — The Kennedy administration accused the South Vietnamese government again Monday of taking repressive measures against its critics but held off any cutbacks in American aid.

State Department Press Officer Richard I. Phillips expressed the U.S. view as policymakers in various government agencies weighed what further pressures might apply to moderate the strong-arm methods of the Saigon regime by President Ngo Dinh Diem.

There were signs of mounting demands both within and outside of the U.S. government for aid-cutting action if Diem does not mend his ways.

GRONOUSKI NOMINATED FOR POSTAL JOB

Washington (AP) — President Kennedy Monday nominated John Gronouski, 43, a Wisconsin Democrat trained in taxation and public finance, to be postmaster general.

The appointment, which is subject to Senate confirmation, was announced exactly one month after the cabinet post became vacant. Kennedy's first postmaster general, J. Edward Day, resigned Aug. 9 to return to the practice of law.

Gronouski's selection for the $25,000-a-year post was forecast by Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., and by the nominee himself. Zablocki told a state convention of the Polish Legion of American Veterans in Milwaukee that he had received word of the impending appointment in a phone call from Kennedy's brother-in-law, Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver.

Gronouski, who was attending the convention, said he also has been notified and told the legion group: "I hope I will conduct myself so that all will be proud that a Wisconsin man can do a good job in Washington."

When Kennedy made it official Monday Gronouski termed the appointment "the greatest honor of my life."

"Nothing could please me more than to serve the Kennedy administration in any capacity," he told newsmen in Madison.

"During the 1960 presidential campaign," Gronouski said Monday with a smile, "I licked a lot of postage stamps."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., commented:

"I am delighted with this, and I have every confidence in Gronouski. He was an outstanding Wisconsin tax commissioner and will make an excellent postmaster general."

Gronouski was born in Dunbar, Wis., of Polish-American parents and grew up in Oshkosh. He now lives with his wife and two daughters in Madison.

He received his bachelor's degree in economics from the University of Wisconsin, then served during World War II as a navigator with the 8th Air Force in Europe.

He was shot down over the English Channel in July 1944, on his 24th combat mission and was rescued by a British destroyer.

Emerging from the Army as a first lieutenant in October, 1945, Gronouski returned to the University of Wisconsin where he received his master's degree in economics and public finance in 1947.

He taught economics and finance at the University of Maine from 1948 until 1950 when he returned to the University of Wisconsin to study for his doctor of philosophy degree in taxation and public finance, which he received in 1955.

Nik Hits Mao Where It Hurts

Tokyo (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev, with his charge that Red China would sacrifice half of mankind in a nuclear war to achieve Communist victory, apparently has hit Peking where it hurts.

The Chinese theoretical organ Red Flag Monday called this kind of talk "spittle" picked up from the United States.

Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung does not seem to relish being cast as an enemy of mankind. In the past week his propaganda organs have devoted much space to the subject, all of it seeking to rebut Khrushchev's accusation.

Red Flag's 2,000-word article was the second Chinese comment within eight days. The first appeared in a joint article by Red Flag and the official Peking People's Daily Sept. 1. The joint article was even more vehement.

"The main feature of the Soviet government's latest statement is its slanders that we want socialism (communism) to win by means of thermonuclear war and that we would sacrifice 300 million Chinese and half of mankind in order to create a greater civilization on the corpses and the ruins," it said.

The article called this "really hair-raising stuff. How shocking! The Chinese Communists are nothing but a bunch of bloodthirsty monsters, worse than Hitler, worse than any tyrants past or present, and needless to say, hundreds of times worse than the U.S. imperialists."

The Chinese identified the Soviet charges as stemming from remarks made by Mao in Moscow in 1957 and to a passage in "Long Live Leninism," written by the editorial department of Red Flag.

Mao, in his then secret speech, said that if war should break out a third of the world's population might be lost, but that "imperialism would be razed and the whole world would become socialist." That did not mean China wanted a nuclear war, only that there was no need to be afraid if the West launched one, the article said.

Crop, Pasture Prospects Up Due To Rains

... Wheat Seeding Moves Ahead

Row crop and pasture prospects perked up in the state after another week of generous rains, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said in its weekly crop report.

Corn, milo, and soybeans made good progress toward maturity.

Nearly 80% of the corn was reached the dent stage and nearly 10% has been rated mature. Progress was described as "at least a week ahead of normal development."

Milo has also made good progress and prospects brightened in the dry area where the crop had suffered because of drought.

Soybeans have begun turning color and sugar beets have been sizing up nicely.

The harvest of a good quality bean crop has started in the Panhandle.

Other division comment:

—Most areas have sufficient surface soil moisture for fall seeding of winter grains.

—Seeding of winter wheat was most advanced in the

Nebraskans Hope To Sell Chicagoans ... On Cornhuskerland

Chicago (UPI) — A score or more Cornhuskers got set Monday night to prove to Chicago area business leaders that there is no place like Nebraska.

The group entertains an expected 85 guests Tuesday but David Osterhout, chief of the Nebraska Division of Resources, said the Nebraskans do not constitute a "raiding party."

"It's an opportunity," Osterhout said, "to show our wares to people whose plants or businesses will be expanding within the next few years."

Similar groups from other states have visited here to convince Chicago area industry of the advantages of locating somewhere else. Chicagoans have been known to go elsewhere to try to bring new industry here.

The Nebraska contingent includes Gov. Frank B. Morrison.

"Governor Morrison's personal interest in meeting each of the potential Nebraska businesses at our Chicago lunch has encouraged our efforts in the industrial promotion area," Osterhout said.

If the Chicago lunch is successful, Osterhout said, a similar affair may be scheduled for New York. "Then the governor," Osterhout said, "would like to bring some of these prospects out to Nebraska to show them some of the new industrial parks."

Welcome Nebraska Trend

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Despite a State Fair straw vote somewhat to the contrary, there was encouraging news over the weekend. From three places or sources has come word that the number of people in the state is on the rise, and substantially so. The U.S. Bureau of Census reports that the state gained 53,000 people in 1962 and the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health says we have had an in-migration of people of 33,000.

The state's population has jumped 19,581 just as a natural result of births over deaths. And from the U.S. Department of Labor has come a report which concludes that the population decline of the area may be in state of reversal. Apparently, the decline due to the mechanization of agriculture has been overcome by the increase from expanded non-agricultural employment. From 1959 to 1962, the Midwest region including Nebraska has realized an 80 percent jump in manufacturing employment — going beyond the national increase of 63 percent.

In overall non-agricultural employment, the rise has been 72 percent in the region as compared to 80 percent nationally. This is the kind of change in the structure of the state that many people have worked toward for a long time. No one has sought the decline of agriculture as a potent force in our statewide employment figure but they have seen it happen and realize that the slack would have to be taken up somewhere else.

Agriculture continues as a potent force in our economy but it does so while employing fewer people — a fact that can be attributed to the mechanization of the farm. Even constantly expanding farm production has been unable to absorb all the workers that might have wanted to make farming a way of life.

Because of this, the state has sought a diversity of its economy so that the losses in agricultural employment could be made up in industrial expansion. No one needs to be told that the effort toward industrial expansion is continuing as representatives of this state will be furthering that end with delegations this week in both Chicago and in Europe. In addition to that, we have continued our efforts toward the greater use of agricultural products in industry and the development of tourism as a major industry of the state. The Resources Division of the state government and cities throughout the state continue their cooperative efforts to acquire new industries for the area.

Slow Learners

Oriental democracy is akin to a delicate watch in the hands of some aborigine who never heard of telling time.

We have had that difficulty in South Viet Nam and we continue to have it in South Korea.

While the United Nations and the U.S. were fighting there to prevent a communist takeover of the old tycoon Syngman Rhee was running the country like a superannuated drill master. There was some hope that matters would improve when Gen. Chung Hee Park succeeded with a military coup in 1961 with promises to liberalize the government. If he did, the results continue to be obscure. After all, an Oriental general is a war lord whose idea of liberty and tranquility is the absence of anyone in disagreement.

There was some hope of a better day in the scheduling of general Korean elections a month hence.

Algeria A Troubled Land

Algeria, an independent yearling, has adopted a new constitution by vote of her people but the action may be a deceiving one. In the case of Algeria, it cannot be presumed that the action reflects the majority voice of the people or that the election is a sign of true Algerian independence.

First of all, it is doubtful that a majority of the Algerians went to the polls — millions of disgruntled citizens have boycotted the election in protest. Certainly, no majority has voted in favor of the new constitution. Secondly, there was not much of a choice in the matter.

The vote only gives more form to what was already in existence, a dictatorship. The constitution outlaws all but the National Liberation Front headed by Premier Ahmed Ben Bella. The Communist party already had been outlawed by legislation passed by the Algerian National Assembly, composed of NLF members.

It Takes Hunger

The summer vacation definitely came to an end Monday with the return of the young folks to school.

It is always a time of mixed feelings. To young parents who watch their eldest, who is not yet very old, make his way for the first time toward the school house there is that poignant realization that a dear phase of childhood has come to an end. The little fellow is making his first

Franco Regime More Moderate

MADRID — Some of my readers will probably faint when I say anything good about Dictator Franco of Spain. And some critics who place in which to live, our existence would be a dreary one. And if all past generations had been satisfied with what they had, we would still be a highly uncivilized society. The basic human challenge we face is to try to make the world better than it was when we came into it. Therefore, we have a responsibility to try to make our community and our state more rewarding for future generations.

However, accurate reporting compels me to state that the one-time police state of Francisco Franco has changed a lot from the old days; and, just as tough Stalinism in Russia has given way to more moderation, so the dictatorship which once ruled Spain has relaxed considerably. The average Spaniard scarcely knows that it is there.

The political structure of Spain has not changed. And Franco is still the boss. But he's a very relaxed and somewhat aloof boss who has now become something of a legend. He is seldom seen by the Spanish people, except in photos, usually homey scenes playing with children. Sometimes these are shown in contrast to the pictures of troubled Viet Nam and strife-torn Algeria.

Spain is relatively prosperous and there has seen a tremendous building program, especially in Madrid and the resort areas along the coast.

If you ask a Spanish cabinet member the reason for this prosperity, as I did, he will reply: "Civil order." While this may be true, it is a great barrier for any reform-minded opposition.

Certainly the Orientals need a great deal of education in the arts of democracy. They haven't apprehended much of the spirit of it yet.

Women Haters Have Taken Over Fashion Designing

NEW YORK — At this particular moment in fashion history, the American woman who wants to go on looking like a woman has her work cut out for her. She must realize that there is a willful little cabal of so-called fashion "experts" in New York who are doing their best to foist the freaknik and the beatnik designers on the dress industry. They are in league with the fancy-pantsters to turn us all into creepnicks.

Some of the most famous designers on both sides of the Atlantic are men who create beautiful clothes for my sex. But these men are under no circumstances to be confused with the floundering fancy-pantsters, on both sides of the ocean, who can't stand women and whose principal goal in life is to make women look ridiculous.

What this particular category of designer, if he is to be dignified by that title, specializes in is not clothes but weird costumes for women to drop dead in. Their "art," like that of so many no-talent artists, is the production of non-art. What the fancy-pantsters produce is non-clothes. The dresses they design are comparable to the canvases produced by artists who think they have achieved a masterpiece when they paste miscellaneous ragamuffin look.

Let the creepnicks in the cabal be happy with one another, but let us have no more of this campaign to turn American women into freaknicks in the name of spurious fashion.

As a matter of fact, the world has been in a period of non-art, rather than anti-art, for some time. Respectable museums have been so hornswoggled by non-art that

LA VERA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

Last week I told of the rafters being put up for the quonset The Farmer is building. Before the last one was put in place, there was a slight delay caused by a nest of bumble-bees. No one was aware that a danger lurked nearby until one of the men was stung. A few seconds later, another man was stung three times. When the alarm was given, it was every man for himself.

The Farmer came dashing into the house to get the insect spray, thinking it could be used to kill the bees down in the ground. There was only one catch to that . . . how was one to get near enough to the nest when scores of angry bees were defending it?

After some delay, most of the bees were disposed of and the men went back to work although they were half an hour late in getting chores done that night.

Have you ever gone to the deep freeze and been surprised by finding a jar of some fruit or vegetable that you thought you had eaten?

This morning I was looking for a package of meat and found a pint of cherries. There were no cherries this year due to the late heavy freeze so the pint of Early Richmond cherries that I found had somehow escaped my attention and were from last year's crop. I made a cherry pie, which we enjoyed more than any other I have made recently. That does not include peach pie which I think is elegant made with fresh peaches at this time of year.

Preparations to join the Common Market, which require a free economic and political exchange.

The migration of half a million Spaniards, who have sent back both money and ideas about progress in the rest of Europe.

The American military bases in Spain, which have brought both contacts with Americans and the help of about one billion U.S. dollars during the past ten years.

So while it may have been undemocratic for the United States to aid a dictatorship, the net result has been to make that dictatorship more democratic.

Last and perhaps most important has been education. People have been taught to read and write. A goal of 25,000 new school houses was set three years ago, and as of last week, 24,034 had been built. The more you educate people the more you have to give them in the way of intellectual and political freedom. This has been true of the communist bloc and it's also true of Spain.

purple asters. Despite the milky juice of the stems of the wild flowers that got on my hands, I did think they made into a nice arrangement. A florist might have tossed it out the window but every once in a while when I can find the wild flowers in bloom, I like to bring them into the house.

One thing I could not tolerate is to have the man in the moon laugh at my mistakes. Goodness knows, I have made my share of them.

The gladiolus have burst into bloom with all the frequent rains we have been having. Although the late flowers are just as lovely as the early blooms, the grasshoppers are trying their best to destroy the last beauty of the season by chewing on the petals. The dahlias, too, are being fringed around the edges by the pests. With so many weeds to chew upon, I do not know why they select the flowers.

I am almost tempted to stand at the edge of the garden with a sign in my hand reading: "These weeds are delicious. Try some." However, I do not think there are many grasshoppers around who can read.

ETV Funds

Lincoln, Neb.

Thanks for the editorials on ETV. One point has been mentioned, but I think it should be brought before the public more forcefully — and that is the fact that Channel 16 would have no listeners except those who purchase UHF receiving sets or remodel their present equipment—whereas, if the program begins with the expansion of Channel 12, as approved by the Federal Communications Commission, Channel 12 will reach more than half the population of Nebraska—will reach not only the Omaha schools but all the other schools in eastern Nebraska and all private homes and businesses without any change in equipment.

I can't conceive of anyone's even considering spending our first money for the benefit of such a limited audience.

I have worked on this problem for long years. I promise the legislators and Nebraska people that we would do our best to set up ETV so it would reach every home, and the six channels (with the exception of one station) will do just that with ordinary black and white or color television sets. It seems such a waste of money to spend our first available funds to build Channel 16 that can be received by only a minority who own special equipment; at the present time I doubt that there are but a very few UHF sets in Omaha. All the schools wishing to take advantage of ETV will have to install UHF equipment and then the students couldn't take advantage of lessons aired after school hours, evenings or mornings, etc., as they could over Channel 12.

This is a very important phase to be considered, and I don't think we should close our eyes to the problem merely to pacify one Omaha superintendent.

Nature's Balance

Lincoln, Neb.

In the Star editorial of Sept. 2, "Perfidious Nature," the wonder was expressed about what we have done to deserve what the bugs are doing to us. It seems to me that maybe we are getting what we deserve, because we have upset nature's balance. We started war on the bugs with man's chemical and mechanical aids, and war begets war, so they started war on us.

One day my husband saw many aphids on one of his trees and said he would have to spray it next day, but next day when he looked at it, there were many lady bugs there busily disposing of the aphids. A day or so later, lady bugs and aphids were all gone and the tree was doing nicely.

Nature has a delicate balance which man, being the greedy person he is, thought he could improve on, and he's only getting himself into a mess.

Years ago the grasshoppers used to come in swarms and eat up all the crops, but somehow no one starved. There was always enough left to live on until the next season and people learned to lay up enough of a good crop to carry them over in case of a bad one next year.

God gave rain, sunshine and organic matter for fertilizer and animals for food and there was enough but not too much. Then man wanted more so he killed off the bugs, made artificial fertilizer, drew the water out of the ground instead of waiting for rain, plowed up ground that should never have been plowed, produced more than he could use and didn't know what to do with it. Yet thousands of people are hungry even in our own land.

Water is becoming scarce and we are wondering if in time we can take it from the sea. The bugs have become immune to man's chemicals.

When will man learn that God's way is best, that he can't overcome nature without hurting himself?

Daily Exercise May Help In Combating Heart Disease

By ROBERT PETERSON

I have a sneaking suspicion that exercise will someday be hailed as a major key in preventing heart disease. Of course, famed Dr. Paul Dudley White has been trumpeting this theory for years. But, unfortunately, he's 76 years old and many researchers smile at his theories and regard him tolerantly as someone to be humored.

What are Dr. White's theories on exercise and arteriosclerosis—our No. 1 killer claiming nearly a million lives annually? When I last talked with him he explained that arteriosclerosis results when arteries have become clogged—probably due to diets rich in cholesterol-forming fats. It's his theory that brisk, daily exercise not only strengthens arterial walls and heart muscles, but permits the body to burn up excess lipids which would otherwise cling to arterial walls and lead to clogged arteries and heart attacks.

Despite Dr. White's much-publicized views, only a handful of heart specialists are researching the role of exercise. A spokesman for the U.S. Public Health Service tells me he cannot say what part of the more than $55 million spent annually on heart research is devoted to the role of exercise. But my probing lead me to conclude it is an insignificant sum indeed.

A typical study is one under Dr. Herman K. Hellerstein of Lakeside Hospital in Cleveland, who has a $15,000 research grant from the U.S.P.H.S. When I talked with this research physician recently he described the study as follows:

"We have a group of about 150 men participating voluntarily. They average 42 years of age and are in good health, except that half of them possess characteristics which have been shown to indicate a greater susceptibility to coronary heart disease.

"Each participant fills out a detailed personal history form, and we give him a thorough physical exam which includes measuring oxygen capacity and changes in pulse rate during multi-level exercises. This data is then transferred to IBM cards for later analysis.

"The participants come to our gym three times a week and work out under the supervision of a group leader. These workouts run for half an hour and include a variety of calisthenics. Each participant takes at least five hours of exercise weekly. Individual prescriptions for exercise at home are also given.

"At the end of each 10-week period we test these men to note changes in physical endurance and strength, as well as in cardiovascular capacity.

"It's a continuing study which we hope will go on for several years and give us some insight into the actual relation of exercise to immunity from heart disease."

It seems to me that studies of this kind are vitally important and deserve considerably more funds than the minimum sums presently allocated.

Research authorities tell me most of the millions being spent on heart studies are going into "basic research," which includes laboratory studies of blood chemistry, clotting, characteristics, heart tissue, cellular nutrition and deterioration, and blood lipids. But since exercise is a factor which can be inexpensively researched and its application readily controlled by the individual, it seems we should waste no time determining its possible role in combatting the nation's No. 1 killer.

Nebraska's Withdrawal From States Council To Be Urged and the vetoes were not overruled.

The Hawaii conference adopted a watered down resolution leaving the amendments issue to state legislatures.

Sen. Harold Stryker of Rison City, delegate to a recent national legislative conference in Hawaii, sponsored by the Council of State Governments, said Monday he will suggest that Nebraska withdraw from the conference if it is going to involve itself in policy making.

He said his position is prompted by the Hawaii conference's involvement with the three so-called state's rights constitutional amendments aimed at curbing the federal government's powers.

The amendments, endorsed earlier by the Council of State Governments, received state level attention in Nebraska this year. The Legislature adopted two of the amendments by resolution but Gov. Frank Morrison vetoed them for the latter resolution after earlier supporting a rejected resolution, introduced by Hawaii, which would have rejected the amendments. He said he based his position on the outcome of the amendments in the Nebraska Legislature but said he didn't feel he had the right "to speak for all the people of Nebraska."

Stryker said he objects to policy considerations at the conference because delegates are not in position to act on policy matters on behalf of the states they represent.

Death In Family Saddens Miss America

New York (AP) — Donna Axum, the new Miss America, radiated happiness Monday as she conducted her first New York news conference. But sadness also was in the room—the news, concealed from her, that her step-grandfather had just died.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hurley B. Axum, did not let the death message dampen her triumph, even though he was "just like a natural grandfather to her," Mrs. Axum said.

The 21-year-old beauty wasn't told until hours after the cameras and notepads and microphones were gone that Fred E. Tate, 93, her mother's step-father, had died in Baton Rouge, La. He had been ill for some time. She took the news well, a spokesman said.

Very Sorry

"Of course, she is very shocked and very sorry," said Peggy O'Neill, Donna's official chaperone during her reign. "And she feels very badly that she cannot go to the funeral."

The parents decided to wait for a moment of privacy, before their departure from Idlewild Airport Monday afternoon, to let her know of the death.

"She'll take it well," Axum had predicted speaking quietly with a reporter in a back corner of the plush reception room of Miss America's suite in the Park Lane Hotel.

"It shouldn't come as too much of a shock to her," added Axum, a banker from El Dorado, Ark.

Deft, Witty

As her parents talked, the brown-haired, brown-eyed Miss America of 1964 held court from a throne-like red chair, deftly and wittily answering questions.

Not only was she unaware of the death, she also had indirectly helped deliver the death message.

The telephone call came to the reception room for a name which sounded like "Adele Atkinson." When there was no response, Donna turned slightly on the platform where she was arranging herself for photographers and suggested, "that must be for my mother."

Tempered

The message visibly tempered the pride of Mrs. Axum in her daughter's victory. Just minutes earlier she had been in the lobby, looking for back copies of New York newspapers—"to get the picture of my daughter," she explained to a hotel attendant. "She's Miss America."

Mr. and Mrs. Axum, flying home Monday, plan to take a flight from Arkansas to Louisiana Tuesday morning to see Mrs. Axum's mother.

Donna, however, has a full week's schedule of posing for advertising cameras as Miss America.

Axum's joy in his daughter's victory over 51 contestants at Atlantic City, N.J. Saturday night was evident. "This is a dream come true for her and the Axum family," he said.

Rock Breaks Promise, Blames JFK

Albany, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller withdrew Monday his promise to hold the line on state taxes through 1966 and blamed the Kennedy administration for his doing so.

The Republican governor, a potential presidential candidate made the pledge during his successful campaign for re-election last year.

He told a news conference that he no longer considered himself bound by the pledge because the national administration had failed to achieve the economic growth rate on which he had based it.

Rockefeller said he did not anticipate any new taxes in the next state budget—one he will send to the legislature next February—but could not make promises beyond then.

Must Be Realistic

"I've got to be realistic," he asserted.

The subject came up when a reporter asked Rockefeller whether he still stood by a statement he made to a campaign audience at Niagara Falls last October.

At that time, Rockefeller said, "I can say to you categorically there will be no increase in taxes in the next four years."

Rockefeller said his statement had been predicated on a belief that the national economy would surge forward, as forecast by Democratic President Kennedy.

But there was no such surge and the conditions that prompted him to make his pledge no longer exist, Rockefeller said.

No Longer Bound

"Then you no longer consider yourself bound by it?" a reporter asked.

"No, I don't," the governor replied.

In response to a perennial question on his White House ambitions, Rockefeller said he had not decided yet whether to seek the 1964 presidential nomination or whether he would enter presidential primaries next year.

There has been widespread speculation—fueled by the governor's increasing activity on the national level—that he will announce his candidacy in the fall.

Rockefeller said he thought his reception was good during a weekend visit to Oregon, Ill., one of a series of out-of-state trips he has planned, apparently to test his popularity.

He challenged the accuracy of news accounts that Republican leaders had boycotted his Illinois appearance. He said the GOP state chairman and vice chairman had been present, along with county and district leaders.

Puts No Blame

Rockefeller said he did not blame the three aspirants for the GOP gubernatorial nomination for staying away.

On other subjects, Rockefeller said:

—He considered the far-left and far-right philosophies equally dangerous to the nation and did not agree with Sen. Barry Goldwater, who is regarded as a rival for the GOP presidential nomination.

that there was a greater danger from the far left. —He did not agree with interpretations that political observers had placed on Republican primary results in New York City and Erie County, regarded respectively as a setback and a victory for Rockefeller.

"Every time anyone sneezes," the governor said, "it's interpreted as a reflection on my popularity."

Argentine Rain Nearer Brazil

... HOPED TO BE BLESSED

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil (UPI)—A wind and rain storm that caused flood damage in Argentina moved closer to fire-ravaged Parana state in southern Brazil Monday. Brazilian officials hoped it would be a blessing.

Rain has started falling in parts of Santa Catarina, the state immediately to the south of Parana, and the weather bureau said the storm was expected to reach the fire areas by Tuesday. The wind would be no help to firefighters, but they have said rain is about the only thing that can help them control the flaming forests and fields.

The United States, meanwhile, sped food, clothing and Peace Corps volunteers to tinder-dry Parana a state, which has had no rain since January.

A U.S. Navy C130 cargo plane left Rio de Janeiro with 15 tons of badly needed food and clothing. Ten Peace Corps volunteers, trained in hospital work, also were aboard.

U.S. Food Aid

From Sao Paulo, trucks loaded with U.S. Food For Peace cargoes left on a 200-mile highway trip to the Parana capital of Curitiba.

Food supplies were running critically short in Curitiba and other parts of the state's interior, where forest fires raging out of control for four days have wiped out crops and burned down homes.

Meanwhile, bad weather in the national capital, Brasilia, grounded President Joao Goulart, who had planned a personal inspection tour of the state. His government has released a billion cruzeiros ($1 million) to aid Parana, the nation's biggest coffee-producing state and a leader in production of timber.

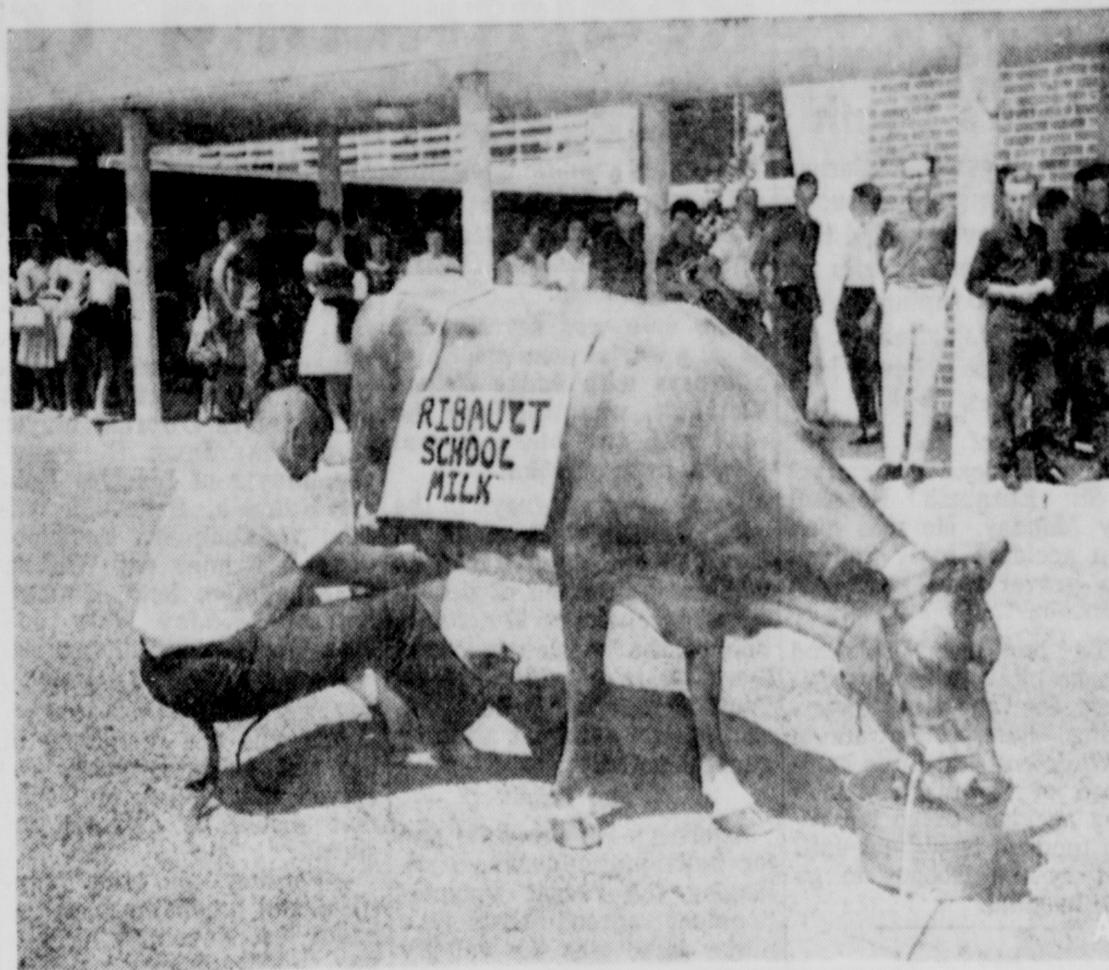

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Rio de Janeiro reported that U.S. Forest Service expert Merle S. Lowden had messaged briefly from the timber town of Monte Alegre that heavy damage had been caused to forests there. Monte Alegre is the central production point for the vast Klabin Industries.

Town Not Endangered

Parana state officials said Monte Alegre itself was out of danger of being overrun by flames.

Officials last week reported 250 persons had perished in the fires but said later this figure may be lower or higher. Communications difficulties with remote areas make accurate counts impossible, they say.

They said 300,000 persons were burned out of their homes but this figure, too, could be subject to revision.

MILK-IT-YOURSELF SOLUTION

Down in Jacksonville, Fla., Monday, 16-year-old Steve Moore took a cow to Ribault High School and provided the answer to the school milk problem. The Duval County School Board has turned down milk bids because they were quite a bit higher than last year. School officials are hoping the state milk commission does something about it at a meeting in Orlando Tuesday.

Maracaibo, Venezuela (UPI)—The Prieto quintuplet boys were reported doing well Monday, yawning and stretching feebly under eyeglasses feeding, while their proud mother pondered where to put them in her one-bedroom house. Three of the Prietos' 15 other children are also at home.

Dr. Robinson Suarez Herrera, chief obstetrician at University Hospital here, said the five boys had successfully passed their first danger period and are healthy.

A bulletin issued by the six-man medical team in charge of the quintuplets' care noted that Juan Jose, the third born, had lost weight but that all five were in "acceptable condition."

Juan Jose and Fernando, the fourth born, weighed 3 pounds 1.4 ounces at birth early Saturday. The others were heavier — Robinson, first born, 3 pounds 15.5 ounces; Otto, second born, 3 pounds 4.9 ounces; and Mario, fifth born, 4 pounds 3 ounces.

Two Months Early

The quintuplets were being fed a mixture of modified skimmed milk and malt.

Doctors predicted mother and sons may be well enough to leave the hospital in a month. For now, however, the babies will remain in incubators until their weights increase satisfactorily.

The mother, Mrs. Ines Marie Cuervo de Prieto, 34, has already left her bed for a short spell on her feet, but has yet to see her babies.

The mother's room was filled with flowers and her husband, Efren, a 39-year-old oil company foreman, took a constant flow of telephone calls from well-wishers. Venezuela's President Romulo Betancourt wired congratulations. $10.40 Per Day Prieto wondered, however, how he was going to support the quintuplets on the 46.70 bolivars ($10.40) he makes a day at the Creole Petroleum Corp.

He has 10 children by two previous marriages and he helps to support them. Mrs. Cuervo de Prieto has five children by a previous marriage, and one, a 17-year-old daughter, as already made her a grandmother.

"With only one bedroom, it's going to be a little crowded," said Mrs. Cuervo de Prieto.

5 Baskets Of Diapers

However, aid already was beginning to arrive, and the government has assured the Prietos of its protection. The organization "Friends of University Hospital" provided five baskets of diapers and clothing.

Although the quintuplets were born out of wedlock, there was nothing uncommon about the Prietos' informal

200 Chicago Students Stage Demonstration Against Integration On High School's Lawn

By United Press International

Two hundred chanting, clapping white students staged an anti-integration demonstration Monday on the lawn of an all-white Chicago high school. Pickets marched at several New York schools to protest alleged racial imbalance in classrooms.

The white youths clapped in unison, shouted "Go home," and chanted: "Two, four, six, eight—we don't want to integrate."

White housewives, some wheeling youngsters in strollers, picketed the school protesting overcrowding. In all, almost 400 persons were demonstrating before school bells called the students back to classes.

Transfer Plans

The school administration has announced plans to transfer students from other schools to Bogan, despite the fact that 198 Bogan students were shifted to an elementary school two blocks away.

School officials would not say whether the students being transferred to Bogan would include Negroes. But it was known that some of the students who would be eligible for transfer are Negroes.

"Bogan for Boganites — No guests," read one sign in the picket line. "No room for our kids but room for outsiders," another sign said.

Token picket lines marched at some other Chicago schools where more than 25 integrationists were arrested last week in protests against alleged de facto segregation and a white principal of an all-Negro school.

Manhattan Protest

Picket lines outside Public School 41 in New York's Manhattan protested the transfer of 55 pupils from that predominantly white school to predominantly Negro P.S. 130.

The pickets were joined by Greenwich Village Democratic leader Edward Koch, who defeated Carmine De Sapio in his bid to regain political power.

More than 25 persons demonstrated outside the predominantly Negro Woodfield Road School in Malverne, in city schools.

Long Island. Several hundred Negro pupils, withdrawn from the Woodfield Road School, Monday began classes conducted by volunteer teachers in a Garden City, N.Y., church.

Councilmen Hear Pleas For Control Of Liquor

By VIRGIL FALLOON

Star Staff Writer

Church and temperance leaders Monday urged the City Council to make no changes in the city's present liquor control policy.

A dozen spokesmen addressed the Council with some 50 persons attending the public hearing.

Last week, the Council obtained the views of liquor and beer retailers on present policy.

"Lincoln is a clean and beautiful city," said the Rev. Richard Carlyon, Methodist district superintendent. "Liquor control has been a key factor."

Spokesmen for the Temperance League of Nebraska and Women's Christian Temperance Union urged that the city continue its present containment policy on location and number.

Impressionable

The Rev. Burl Pennings of the Nebraska Council for Alcohol Education said beverage alcohol outlets in the suburban areas would increase exposure to young people "during their formative and impressionable years."

Joe Scabill, a Nebraska Wesleyan student, said, "Liquor is not as well controlled as we think."

He charged that members of his fraternity under 21 have purchased liquor and said he would make information regarding this available to Mayor or Dean Petersen at the mayor's request.

No Action

Following the hearing, the Council discussed the city policy, but took no action.

Discussed was the possibility of permitting locations in the major commercial centers designated in the comprehensive plan.

One councilman noted a decision may have to be made in connection with additional bottle club license applications set for hearing next Monday as well as a request for a new off-sale beer license. The applications:

—authorizing the issuance of Woods Park Swimming Pool near 33rd and 17th; —vacating 20-year houses to be purchased with reserve funds, but would be retired from swimming pool revenues and involve no tax money.

—vacating east of Garfield and east-west alleys in C. J. Hull's South Addition; —vacating part of 7th and 72nd in Hillcrest Addition.

—vacating east-west alleys between 17th and St. Mary's south of South Paving District 1992 for 52nd from Lexington to Huntington Ave.

—non-profit corporation license for 40 & 8 Legionaire Club at 5730 O.

—off-sale beer license for Schrier's Food Inc. for 317 So. 17th.

—bottle club license for Hilltop Club Inc. for 5600 O.

Traffic Aide Sees 6-Lane NE Diagonal

The Northeast Diagonal will need to be a six-lane, divided highway in some areas, City Traffic Engineer Robert Holzinger told the City Council Monday.

Holzinger said a preliminary traffic study "indicates six lanes in some sections," but added further study should be made.

Mayor Dean Petersen told the Council the radial highway route is being reviewed by city officials "for finalizing."

However, Councilman John Comstock said, "I don't feel we should finalize any route of the Northeast Diagonal until the $100,000 origin-destination study is completed."

Comstock suggested the diagonal "will be one of the most expensive pieces of street construction in the city's history" and the city "should be right on its location."

He noted there have been delays on the diagonal, but any final decisions should await completion of a two-year traffic study now underway.

Auto Accident Is 'Probable' Cause Of Man's Death

By NANCY RAY

Star Staff Writer

Deputy County Attorney Ron Lahmers said Monday that an autopsy revealed that the death of Gerald Butts resulted from a ruptured duodenal, "probably" as a result of injuries suffered in a traffic accident.

The date was set Monday at a pre-trial conference of attorneys with Judge Robert Van Pelt, who will hear the case with two other federal judges from Omaha.

Opinions of attorneys in the case were that it could be heard in one day, unless testimony on some of the allegations about rural domination of the legislature cause the trial to lengthen into "several weeks," Robert Nelson, special assistant attorney general noted.

Major Issue

Attorneys for the state and for individual plaintiffs challenging the recent reapportionment agreed that the major issue was the validity of the constitutional amendment approved by Nebraska voters last fall and giving weight of from 20% to 30% to area in legislative reapportionment.

Also a major issue, it was noted, is the subsequent action of the Legislature in passing legislation which re-apportioned legislative seats, giving 20% weight to area and 80% to population in forming 49 districts.

Plaintiffs contend that reapportionment should be made on the basis of population alone, and that other factors tend to "dilute" urban votes in the more populous areas.

During the pre-trial talks, Judge Van Pelt ordered stricken sections of the supplemental complaint which alleged the court had erred earlier in dismissing the League of Nebraska Municipalities, and mayors in their executive capacities as plaintiffs in the suit, and had erred in not declaring the then-proposed reapportionment amendment to the Nebraska Constitution "palpably unconstitutional."

Classes in "wall hangings" —making ornaments and decorations for the home out of scrap materials — will start Thursday, Sept. 12, at 1 p.m. and Tuesday, Sept. 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium's crafts room at the Pershing Auditorium.

Ceramics classes, beginning Tuesday, Sept. 17 at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., and Thursday, Sept. 19 at 9 a.m., will take place in the city recreation crafts room at the Pershing Auditorium.

Admission to the lapidary, ceramics and "wall hangings" classes may be gained by calling the Recreation Department.

Lloyd Chapman, one of three attorneys representing the individuals contesting the reapportionment, argued that the legislative journal of the past session would show the rural and urban vote split on several key issues, and contended that the outcome of legislation might be changed if seats were reapportioned on a straight population basis.

At the judge's instruction, Chapman amended the plaintiffs to the following individuals: James Dworak, mayor of Omaha; Dean H. Petersen, mayor of Lincoln; Robert Haworth, Bellevue; William W. Cook Sr., Beatrice; John J. Brinjak and William F. Schollman, both of Omaha, and J. Jay Marx and Max Worley, both of Lincoln.

August Ross, Omaha attorney representing AFL-CIO officials who are remaining in the suit as intervenors, observed that collateral issues that should be explored included:

—Wording of the constitutional amendment on the ballot last November. This was "misleading and deceptive" because the voter was advised that "primary emphasis" was given to population, Ross said. He explained this gave an erroneous impression because the law formerly gave total emphasis to population and the amendment "detracted from that emphasis."

—Entirely New Trial

Judge Van Pelt stressed to the attorneys that the Sept. 30 hearing "will be an entirely new trial, with new evidence and new findings" and will not be based upon a trial held last year before the statewide vote on legislative amendments prior to balloting. These say that the notice must be published for the three weeks immediately preceding the balloting.

Ross stated that some of the weekly publications in the state's 93 counties violated this requirement because the published notices "commenced too soon."

Also present to represent the plaintiffs were attorneys Ralph Nelson, Lincoln city attorney, Henry Holst, Lincoln deputy city attorney, and Herbert Fife, Omaha city attorney.

Robert Nelson and Richard Wilson, representing the state attorney general's office, told the judge they planned to introduce census information to show that population data is "not such a sacred formula that it cannot be deviated from."

Former Coed, Bride

A wedding of interest to Lincoln residents was solemnized at The Church of the Covenant, Presbyterian, in Arlington, Va., on Saturday, Sept. 7, when Miss Anita Deanne Duis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fred Duis of Arlington, formerly of Lincoln, became the bride of John Joseph Alford, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Randolph Tucker Alford of Clarendon, Md. The lines of the 4 o'clock service were read by the Rev. Barry Keen assisted by Dr. A. B. J. Lentz of Louisville, Neb., uncle of the bride.

Mrs. John Henry Sammons of Rockville, Md., was the matron of honor and her sister's only attendant. Her floor length sheath of Dior blue satin was complemented by a back panel of the silk, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink orchids.

Serving his brother as best man was John Randolph Tucker Alford, III, of Clarendon, Md., and the ushers were Daniel Bryan Duis of Arlington, brother of the bride; and Ronald Kuipers, Greenbelt, Md.

For her wedding gown, the bride chose imported Alencon lace in traditional white. A high, jewel throat-line contoured the basque, which was fashioned with elbow sleeves, and the sheath lines of the skirt were emphasized by a Watteau panel of white satin extending from the tucked waist to chapel length. A cluster of illusion roses held to the head her veil of French illusion, and she carried a wedding handkerchief, a family heirloom, and a crescent of white orchids.

The couple will reside at Cortland, N.Y., where the bridegroom is a member of the faculty of the State University of Maryland. Mr. Alford, a member of Delta Upsilon, attended Washington and Lee University and is a graduate of the University of Maryland, where he also received his Masters degree.

For The Back-To-School Set

Here are three items that might be needed for the school year. The fringed denim carryall can be used as a purse or shopping bag. The paisley printed make-up kit will enhance the appearance of any open purse and the trimmed velvet headband is right for all occasions. You might also consider all three as pretty and inexpensive Christmas gifts.

FRINGED CARRYALL:

1. Cut two rectangles of fabric $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 24\frac{1}{2}''$. For pocket cut a piece $5'' \times 6''$.

VELVET HEADBAND:

1. You'll need a strip of velvet ribbon 22 inches long and 2 inches wide, and an 8-inch strip of round elastic.

2. Turn under raw ends of ribbon $\frac{1}{4}$ inch and again $\frac{1}{2}$ inch.

3. Fold rectangle in half, wrong sides together, so bag measures $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 12\frac{1}{4}''$. One edge will be the fold and the other side will be the open raw edges. Stitch the open side in a $\frac{1}{4}$ inch seam. Trim seam to $\frac{1}{8}$ inch. Turn bag inside out and stitch seam again. Turn top edge under $\frac{1}{4}$ inch and again $\frac{3}{4}$ inch and stitch for hem.

4. Cut two handles $14\frac{1}{2}$ inches long and $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches wide. Press all edges under $\frac{1}{4}$ inch. Fold in half lengthwise and top-stitch very close to edge. Place handles on bag $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches from fold on one side and $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches from seam on the other side and stitch.

5. With bag turned right side out, stitch the bottom edges together $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches from the raw edges. Make another row of stitching $\frac{1}{4}$ inch from the first. Pull threads up to the stitching to form the fringe.

MAKE-UP KIT:

1. Cut two rectangles of fabric $11'' \times 8''$ and two more the same size of lining fabric. Stitch lining and fabric together $\frac{1}{4}$ inch from all edges. Press under one long edge of each piece $\frac{1}{4}$ inch.

2. Using a 9-inch zipper, sew the pressed edges to the zipper tape so that the zipper is one inch from each end of the fabric. Sew close to the zipper teeth and edges of fabric.

3. With wrong sides together, stitch rectangles together with a $\frac{1}{4}$ inch seam. Trim seam to $\frac{1}{8}$ inch and turn kit inside out. Stitch again, enclosing the raw edges. Turn right side out and press.

VELVET HEADBAND:

1. You'll need a strip of velvet ribbon 22 inches long and 2 inches wide, and an 8-inch strip of round elastic.

2. Turn under raw ends of ribbon $\frac{1}{4}$ inch and again $\frac{1}{2}$ inch.

FUN NEWS IN SUBURBIA

KESSLER HEIGHTS

September is here again and well under way, and the flurry of activities and entertainment planned for the autumn months seem to be in full swing in Suburbia this week.

Although the weather may not be accommodating for some of the social events taking place in the area, it is, however, giving busy Suburban residents time to squeeze in those last few picnics and barbecues.

And while we are on the topic of barbecues, there is a very special one planned for the near future which will have as hosts and hostesses Mr. and Mrs. James Zimmer, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Struthers, Mr. and Mrs. James Kalal, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Miller and Mr. and Mrs. John Zimmer, III.

The barbecue, which will be held next Saturday, will have a Bohemian theme and will be complete with costumes and a roast pig.

Recent travelers in the Kessler Heights area are Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rotter and their children, Craig, Scott, Becky and Gretchen. The family motored to North Platte for a visit with

Chapel Ceremony

Freed read the lines of the 7:30 o'clock service.

Frocked in sheaths of pastel yellow brocade were Miss Patricia Kurtz, who was the maid of honor, and the bridesmaid, Miss Dona Logan. They wore small hats of illusion in frock tone, and carried cascades of pale yellow carnations.

Thomas L. Eitel served as best man, and seating the guests were Alan Embury, Bill Niemann, Charles Martin and Kenneth Hanneman.

The bride appeared in a princess gown of white Chantilly lace over satin. The sculptured bodice was designed with long sleeves and a portrait neckline, edged with petal points of the lace, and below the Elizabethan waist, the skirt was gathered into extreme fullness and extended into a chapel train. A pearl crown held her veil of illusion, and she carried an arrangement of white and pale yellow feathered carnations.

The members of the Essman family have been vacationing in Englewood, Colo., where they were the guest of Mr. Essman's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Hendee, and family.

Cotner Terrace residents who motored to Omaha last Saturday night for an evening's entertainment were Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Ritenour and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schierman of Greenwood.

A roast pig for a barbecue party is a wonderful idea but building the fire and hovering over the roasting meat are just part of the chores involved. First of all, you have to catch the pig!

Although the barbecue will not be held until next weekend, the Kessler Heights hosts thought it an excellent idea to hold a pre-party last weekend with catching the pig serving as an incentive for the gathering of hosts and hostesses.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

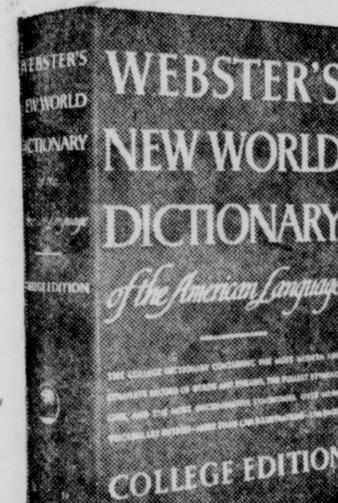

In the great majority of hands the declarer knows as soon as dummy comes down whether or not he is going to make the contract.

However, in many hands he cannot tell at once how he will fare because the outcome depends largely on how the opponents' cards are divided. These hands are usually the most interesting to play because they test the declarer's skill in diagnosing the makeup of the unseen cards and also in finding the best method of play to overcome unfavorable distribution if it exists.

Here is a typical case. West leads the king of hearts against three notrump. How should South play the hand?

A thoughtless player would take the heart with the ace and cash the A-Q of spades.

Dear Abby

A Nature-Loving Hubby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been wanting to join a nudist colony for a long time, but I have been against it. I accompanied him on one trip to the nudist camp and I don't care to go again. I wasn't brought up to run around naked in front of strangers. I am allowed three visits to the camp before it becomes mandatory that I disrobe, too. My husband says I have an evil mind, and that man was much happier when he went around naked and lived with nature in the trees. Should I try to forget my shame and go with him? He can't join unless I do. He is 25 and I am 24. We have a child one year old.

NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: There is nothing "evil" about your mind, so don't let him change it. And you can tell your nature-loving hubby that in time we all might be living "with nature" in the trees again — so he should keep his shirt on.

DEAR ABBY: You sure made a big thing out of a little kid swiping one grape. I'm in the grocery business and I wish I had a dime for every person who helped himself to something in my store. Yesterday a woman came in for some bananas. While I was weighing her bananas she was eating my grapes. I caught her in the act, but did I get excited? Certainly not, because I just finished weighing my thumb.

NICK

DEAR ABBY: I hate to go to funerals. Last week a neighbor passed away and my husband wanted me to go to the funeral with him. I refused because (1) I hardly knew the man, (2) I hate to be around grieving folks, (3) I never know what to say. My husband was very angry with me because he didn't think he ought to go without me. The deceased was a childhood friend of my husband's. My husband went alone, but I still haven't heard the end of it. Was I wrong?

HATES FUNERALS

DEAR HATES: You should have gone. No one LIKES to be "around grieving folks," but the presence of friends who care enough to come is usually a comfort to mourners. You need "say" nothing more at a funeral than, "I'm sorry."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "A DARNED FOOL": The person who is a "darned fool" and KNOWS he's a "darned fool" is no "darned fool". Tell him to shape up or ship out.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Autumn Wedding

Miss Ilona Colgrove, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Colgrove of Odell, became the bride of Maurice Vitosh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Vitosh, also of Odell, at a wedding which took place Sunday afternoon, Sept. 8. The service was solemnized at the First Christian Church in Beatrice by the Rev. Russell McCracken, and Mrs. Willard Lampe, organist, played the wedding music. Robert Hays was the vocal soloist.

Miss Judy McClure of Beatrice, as the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Joyce Colgrove, Odell, and Mrs. Robert Ryle, Lincoln, wore sheaths of taffeta in the avocado shade with full overskirts of organza. Bronzed their bouquets.

Serving as best man was Lawrence Vitosh, and the ushers were Duane Colgrove and Darrel Vitosh, all of Odell.

The bride chose white satin and lace for her wedding gown. The lace bodice was designed with a sabrina neckline, traced with pearls and iridescent sequins, and appliques of the lace patterned the satin skirt, which was caught into back fullness and continued into a train. A tiara of jeweled lace held her illusion veil, and she carried a white orchid from which showered sprays of stephanotis and artificial blossoms from the wedding bouquet carried by her grandmother 60 years ago.

Mr. Dorr and his bride will reside in Arlington. A former student at Gettysburg College and Elizabethtown College, Pa., Mrs. Dorr is a member of the staff of Congressman George A. Goodling of Pennsylvania. The bridegroom, who is a member of the staff of Nebraska Senator Roman L. Hruska, is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University. A member of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity, Mr. Dorr is attending George Washington University College of Law.

Married At Afternoon Service

At an afternoon ceremony

solemnized on Sunday, Sept.

8, Miss Helen Pfeffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Fred G. Pfeffer of Gettysburg, Pa., became the bride of Donald William Dorr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Dorr of Falls City. The lines of the service were read by the Rev. Donald H. Treese at the Gettysburg Methodist Church.

Wearing floor-length frocks of taffeta in mandarin blue were Miss Aurelia Spence of Chicago, as the maid of honor; the bridesmaids, Mrs. Jonathan Street, Minnich, Gettysburg, and Mrs. David R. Dyke, Omaha, sister of the bridegroom; and the bridesmaids, Miss Deanne Neptstad, Mitchell, S.D., and Miss Evelyn Bertorello, Montrose, Colo.

Douglas Harman of Lincoln served Mr. Dorr as best man, and seating the guests were David R. Dyke, Omaha; Robert E. Ruddy, Aberdeen, S.D.; Thomas Mullenburg, Sioux Falls, S.D.; and James R. Goff, Cleveland.

But the careful declarer would not view the hand with such equanimity. He would study the hand thoroughly at trick one and consider the possibility of the spades not being divided favorably.

He would also begin to wonder whether there was a way of overcoming a bad spade break if it existed. And, having thought the matter over, he would find the method of play guaranteed to make the contract regardless of how the spades were divided.

He would duck the king of hearts and win any return in his hand. He would then play the A-Q of spades, overtaking the queen with the king. He would next lead the ten of spades, being willing to lose a trick to the jack.

This line of play would guarantee the contract regardless of anything that happened along the way. It would raise the chances of success to 100%.

Applied floral sprays of re-embroidered Alencon lace patterned the bride's gown of white peau de soie. A rounded neckline accented the basque, the skirt flared widely and continued into a cattail train. A pillbox cap of silk and lace held her illusion veil, and she carried a cascade of white Fuji chrysanthemums and pom-poms.

POSTCARD

Stan Delaplane

In 1848, Denmark freed the slaves of the Virgin Islands. It shocked the free world.

It was well known in the British islands and the American that slaves were happy cutting sugar cane and making rum.

The sugar cane economy then collapsed. ("You see?" said the free world.)

In 1917, the U.S. offered Denmark $25 million for the islands. The Danes were happy to accept and get out.

"That ain't the Tivoli Gardens down there, Knut," they said mopping their steaming brows.

Today, the Danes must be mighty melancholy. Last year, the Virgin Islands took in $35.1 million dollars from steaming tourists.

From my end of St. Croix to the antique capitol of Christiansted is 45 minutes and $4 by taxi.

It is a sleepy little town at this off-season time of year—4000 people, most of them peeking in each other's shops to see what the merchandise is.

The stone housing was built in Danish days. They are built over the sidewalk walkways, shading them from the Caribbean sun. Steps go down narrow alleyways and open into patios full of tropical greenery.

The streets are narrow. Traffic goes on the left. You enter the port under the American flag through American Customs. And when you go back to the mainland you go through their American Customs.

It's a queer business. But these are duty-free ports.

The most famous resident of St. Croix was Alexander

Hamilton, the first Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

He lived in Christiansted, clerk in a hardware store.

The store has now been renamed the Alexander Hamilton Hardware Store—which would probably surprise Alexander a good deal.

Alexander's mama and papa did not get married. And so Hamilton is always prominent in those Sunday supplement lists of famous people whose papas and mamas forgot to get married.

I never know what this proves. Whether you are better off if your papa and mama don't get married? Or does it prove that even so, you can overcome this handicap if you can become secretary of the treasury.

Anyway, Hamilton left the hardware store and became the distinguished secretary. He started the Bank of the United States—I read how he did this once. I would hate to have to explain that to the postal inspectors.

He did the pistols-at-dawn thing with Aaron Burr. Burr was not as distinguished. But he was a better shot.

Christiansted rocked along for many a sunstruck year until the tourists discovered it.

Ghana Fears Misuse Of Southern Rhodesia's Air Force

United Nations, N.Y. (UPI)—Ghana suggested Monday that Portugal and South Africa will maintain Southern Rhodesia's first-class air force for use against neighboring black Africans after it is handed over to the territory's "white minority" governor by Britain.

Ambassador Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana asked the United Nations Security Council to act before the transfer of sovereignty and control of its armed forces to Southern Rhodesia takes effect, "possibly within weeks."

British Ambassador Sir Patrick Dean told the council his government challenged the right of the council to deal with the affairs of Southern Rhodesia, which London classifies as self-governing although it retains control of the territory's foreign affairs. But Dean did not attempt to block debate on the issue raised by Ghana on behalf of the 32 African U.N. members.

To Avert Veto
Ghana and Morocco were working on a resolution which their delegates described as "mild" and designed in hope of averting outright British rejection and possible veto.

Its principal point was understood to ask Britain to hold off the transfer of control of Southern Rhodesia's military forces until a government more representative of the territory's 94% Negro population is formed.

Quaison-Sackey told the council that R. A. Butler, British Cabinet minister in charge of Central African affairs, said there was no secret agreement with Britain to maintain the Southern Rhodesian air force after the transfer of control of Southern Rhodesia's air force after the United Arab Republic.

"The real issue, however," he said, "is whether there is a secret agreement between Southern Rhodesia, Portugal and South Africa by which these powers would pay for the cost of the air force."

More Powerful
Quaison-Sackey said the Southern Rhodesian air force is more powerful than those of South Africa, Portugal or the United Arab Republic.

Southern Rhodesia's army has one all-white battalion recruited mainly from Britain, he said. A second similar all-white battalion is being recruited and in addition it has four white territorial battalions recruited from white settlers, according to the Ghanaian.

"We have demonstrated,"

Quaison-Sackey said, "that the forces about to be transferred are far too big to be handed over to any colonial territory let alone a white minority government representative only of six per cent of the European population and totally unrepresentative of the 94% African population

Dean planned to reply to Quaison-Sackey at Tuesday's council meeting.

U.S. Flag Assists 91 Cuban Refugees

Mexico City (UPI)—Twenty-one Cuban refugees who fled their communist homeland in a commandeered vessel on which they hoisted the American flag arrived safely Monday at Cozumel Island and were granted political asylum.

The refugees boarded the motorship Nelson as passengers at the port of Nueva Gerona, on Cuba's offshore Isle of Pines, and overpowered its five-man crew while en route back to the Havana fishing port of Batabano.

The group comprised of 41 men, 22 women and 28 children.

Cuban exile spokesmen here said the refugees hoisted the American flag on the ship when it reached international waters because Castro coastal sea patrols were seeking to overtake them.

Mass Escape

It was believed to be the largest single mass escape from Cuba since Fidel Castro seized power in January 1959. Two other Cuban refugees managed to reach Progreso, port of Yucatan, in a small skiff, also hijacked. The refugees were quoted as saying they disguised the motorship and raised the U.S. flag to keep off Castro air patrols which buzzed them on several occasions.

"They flew so low over us we could see their machine guns," one refugee said.

5 Days at Sea

The vessel had been at sea five days and reached port without food, water or medicines. Many of the women and children aboard were reported ill and in weakened condition.

The two Cuban refugees who arrived at Progreso were described as sailors. They said they had abandoned the fishing vessel Loyola to which they were assigned at sea the night of Sept. 1.

They said they went over the side while the fishing boat was north of Catoche Cape. They were discovered adrift by the Mexican fishing vessel Ida which towed them to the Yucatan port.

'Sell Nebraska' Group Reaches Luxembourg

Luxembourg (UPI)—A tourist and trade promotion group of visitors from Nebraska arrived Monday on another leg of their current tour which is to carry them to seven European countries.

The expedition, headed by Mrs. Frank B. Morrison, wife of the Nebraska governor, flew into Luxembourg from Brussels.

Monday night, they were guests at a cocktail party designed to give the Nebraskans an opportunity to establish contacts with Luxembourg travel agencies and newspapers.

The visitors are scheduled to leave Luxembourg Tuesday morning for Coblenz, West Germany.

To Board Steamer

There, they will board a Rhine River steamer. There will be lunch break at scenic Assmannschausen on the banks of the Rhine.

The Nebraskans are scheduled to reach Frankfurt about Thursday evening for a two-day stay.

Before leaving Brussels, Nebraska Indian Chief Spotted Back had a last admiring look at the Gothic Brussels town hall and other historic buildings at the town square before leaving for the grand duchy of Luxembourg Monday.

The chief drove into Brussels from The Hague, The Netherlands, Sunday with the 29-strong party on a 24-day "sell Nebraska" tour of Europe.

They made a two-hour sightseeing tour of Brussels after their arrival. Most members of the group went out again Sunday night for a look at "Brussels at night."

Last Look

Monday morning, Mrs. Morrison, Chief Spotted Back and G. C. Young, a rancher of Valentine, Neb., went back to the town square for a last look at the famous buildings.

Chief Spotted Back, in full regalia with his eagle-feather headdress and little bells around his legs, certainly got as many admiring looks from passers-by and policemen as he was casting himself at the town square.

"It is beautiful, really beautiful," the chief said, looking at the richly sculptured white stone facade of the town-hall, dating from the first half of the 15th century, and its 320-foot high spire.

"We have seen many beautiful sights in Brussels. It was a wonderful experience," Chief Spotted Back said.

A member of the party told UPI Sunday night Chief Spotted Back would have liked to smoke the peace pipe in Brussels in an effort to help settle the present "chicken war" between the United States and the Common Market.

"I am a man of peace. I am for peace in every respect," Chief Spotted Back commented Monday. "But it is a pity our stay in Belgium is so brief. We have no time for anything but some sightseeing."

Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska and Rep. Dave Martin, Nebraska Republicans, said in a joint statement that it was unfortunate these matters take so much time but that there appears to be no danger there will be a change from the Hastings site for the project.

Meat Station Action Urged By Governor

Washington (UPI)—Gov. Frank Morrison of Nebraska urged Agriculture Department officials Monday to act promptly on proposed use of part of the Hastings Naval Ammunition Depot as a meat animal research station.

Morrison and others talked with Undersecretary of Agriculture Charles B. Morrison and various department officials.

An aide said the governor was told the department has requested the General Services Administration (GSA) to transfer about 10,000 acres of the depot for use as a beef research station.

If the application is approved, the department proposes to switch its research operations at Fort Robinson to Hastings.

Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska and Rep. Dave Martin, Nebraska Republicans, said in a joint statement that it was unfortunate these matters take so much time but that there appears to be no danger there will be a change from the Hastings site for the project.

Flood Is Cog In Cards' Bid

... OVERSHADOWED BY STARS

New York (P) — Let's give a pat on the back to one of baseball's most under-rated players, Curt Flood of St. Louis.

Flood has put together a steady stream of base hits to help lift the Cards to within 3½ games of the Los Angeles Dodgers while hiking his batting average to .308. He is eighth in the National League batting race and 10th in hits with 182.

In last week's games, the fleet outfielder collected 17 hits in 33 times at bat, a .515 pace, and picked up 12 points. During most of the season Flood's fine performance at bat and in center field has been overshadowed by Dick Groat, Ken Boyer, Bill White, Stan Musial and other more renowned Cardinals.

Groat, the National League batting leader, has been sidelined since last Friday when he was hit in the ribs by a pitched ball. He is batting .328.

Tommy Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers is second with .323. He gained one point in last week's games with 11 safeties in 33 times at bat. Vada Pinson of Cincinnati is third with .322 followed by Hank Aaron, Milwaukee .320, Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh .319 and Tony Gonzales, Philadelphia .315.

In the American League, Carl Yastrzemski of Boston took over the lead from Detroit's Al Kaline. Yastrzemski boosted his average five points to .322 with 12 hits in 30 attempts. Kaline dropped five points to .315 with a 5-for-23 showing.

Little Albie Pearson of the Los Angeles Angels and the surging Rich Rollins of Minnesota are only two points behind Kaline at .313. Pearson lost one point with seven hits in 24 tries while Rollins, collected 16 hits in 31 at bats and picked up eight points.

Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota slammed four homers to tie Boston's Dick Stuart for the American League lead. Each has 37. Stuart drove in eight runs and lifted his pace-setting RBI total to 105.

Hank Aaron paces the National League with 38 homers and 117 runs batted in. The slugging outfielder had three homers and five RBI last week. The figures include Sunday's games.

Picks Nearly Same After Trip

The recently-completed Skywriters Tour of all Big Eight camps failed to alter our predictions as made in Don Pierce's pre-season poll with the exception of one second division change.

Here is the way this writer picked the teams to finish when Don Pierce's ballot was filled out: 1. Oklahoma, 2. Nebraska, 3. Missouri, 4. Kansas, 5. Oklahoma State, 6. Iowa State, 7. Colorado, 8. Kansas State.

The only change we want to make and this will stand for our actual pre-season picks since the earlier ones were not in print is to put Iowa State ahead of Oklahoma State.

Our pick for the Big Eight race looks like this: 1. Oklahoma, 2. Nebraska, 3. Missouri, 4. Kansas, 5. Iowa State, 6. Oklahoma State, 7. Colorado, 8. Kansas State.

Although this doesn't quite go along with Oklahoma coach Bud Wilkinson's thought that every team has a chance to top the Sooners with the exception of Oklahoma State and Kansas State, we were left with a rather low impression of the Buffs.

No Line At Colorado

Although the Buffs' backfield could rate near the top with any in the conference, the Colorado line leaves a great deal to be desired when you start butting heads with other Big Eight lines.

Kansas State is clearly the cellar club for the umpteenth season and only the most optimistic Wildcat rooter could hope for anything higher, especially after watching a work-out.

Iowa State gains the edge over Oklahoma State with its backfield superiority. Both these teams will be among the toughest in the loop with spartan training tactics whipping them into shape. Both Clay Stapleton at Iowa State and Phil Cutchin at Oklahoma State are coaches who drive their athletes to the breaking point and many of the athletes have broken.

Division Is Definite

A definite dividing point separates the top four from the bottom four in the Big Eight, and the breakdown could be carried even further, putting two teams in each class.

Such a two-team breakdown would find Oklahoma and Nebraska at the head of the class, with Missouri and Kansas in the second slot. Oklahoma State and Iowa State would battle on the third rung with Colorado and Kansas State making up the bottom dividing point.

Although many of the Big Eight writers had picked Kansas to finish ahead of Missouri in Pierce's poll, most changed their minds after visiting both camps the past week.

This writer had earlier picked Missouri and saw no reason to change. In fact, the Tigers could definitely push Nebraska for the No. 2 spot.

Kansas has a fine backfield with Gale Sayers leading the attack and it could be even better if sophomore quarterback Steve Renko blossoms into a first-year star. But the Jayhawks can't match Oklahoma, Nebraska or Missouri in the line and the further down in the line you go the worse it looks for the Kansas club.

Missouri has an adequate first unit line to battle Nebraska and Oklahoma, but lacks the depth that these two teams possess. The Tiger backfield can't match those at Nebraska, Oklahoma, or Kansas, and may fall below Iowa State and Colorado.

However, the Tigers should get adequate quarterbacking from either Gary Lane or Mike Jones, both sophomores. And with Vince Turner, Paul Underhill and Gus Otto rounding out the backfield, Missouri certainly isn't hurting at this spot. It's just that the Big Eight is loaded with backfield stars.

The Tigers could deal Nebraska fits, especially if the Cornhuskers begin looking ahead to the showdown date with Oklahoma later in the season. The Huskers should have little reason to be looking ahead when they think back to the Missouri game of last season.

Battle Of Top Two

All of which brings us down to the battle between Oklahoma and Nebraska. And it should be a battle strictly between these two gridiron monsters on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 23.

The Huskers Memorial Stadium will be packed to capacity and unless an upset crops up along the way, both teams will go into the contest with unbeaten marks, with the winner getting a ticket to the Orange Bowl.

Although, members of the Skywriters Tour failed to see the Sooners do anything other than some quick-count calisthenics, stolen from Alabama, neither did they see anything to change our mind that Oklahoma still is No. 1 in the Big Eight.

One must remember that this is basically the same team that whipped Nebraska last year as sophomores and there is no reason to suspect that they won't be better as juniors.

Big Eight finish: Oklahoma first, Nebraska second.

Grid General Pleased With NU Progress

With two-a-day drills nearing an end, Nebraska coach Bob Devaney said Monday he was pleased with the progress made since fall camp opened last Sunday.

"We've accomplished what we expected to do," the Husker coach said. "In fact, we have only a few more plays to add to our offense."

Devaney noted that the Huskers are about at the point he had hoped for at this time while last year at the same time, "we were quite a bit behind."

"We are in better condition this year," the Husker leader said. Devaney was not too concerned over the hot weather that forced him to call Sunday's practice off 15 minutes early.

"I feel that while the weather causes us to drag, it is good at this point for our conditioning," he said.

Although Devaney appeared generally pleased with the fall practice sessions, he inserted a note of warning.

"This team has to be tougher individually because this is where we could be hurt by lack of depth," Devaney said. "Some of our players must learn to shake off injuries and not let injuries bother them."

The work of Ron Poggemeyer, sophomore right halfback from Nebraska City drew praise from Devaney Monday. "The coaching staff is pleased with the effort and attitude of Poggemeyer," Devaney said. "He has worked hard in every drill."

The Husker grididers worked twice Monday, but will have only three more days of two-a-day drills. They will work twice today, Thursday and Friday.

A scrimmage is slated as the only workout Wednesday and another scrimmage is set for Saturday. The Huskers will not work on Sunday's from now on, with the exception of a short running session to loosen the muscles.

Pittsburgh (P) — Los Angeles' National League leading Dodgers are here for the first game of a nine day road trip that may provide the answer to the baseball question of the month:

Can the club, which blew its lead in the final days of last year's pennant race, hang onto its margin over the soaring St. Louis Cardinals?

The Dodgers, idle Monday, led by 3½ games before Monday night's St. Louis-Chicago game.

That's their skimpiest margin since Aug. 15, when they were three ahead.

The Dodgers have won 8 of their last 12 games, which isn't bad. But St. Louis has won 11 of its last 12, which is considerably better.

The Dodgers took a 5-4 beating from San Francisco Sunday while the Cardinals were winning 3-2 over Pittsburgh.

The mood of the team is optimistic. Manager Walter Alston had said: "If we take one of the three in San Francisco I'll be satisfied." The team did just that.

And he doesn't think the 1962 collapse will affect 1963 chances.

"When these fellows are pitching a ball or swinging a bat I doubt very much if they're thinking about last year," Alston said.

-ST. GEORGE WINS, 480-392- Heavy Casualties In 52-Hour Fray

St. George, S. C. (UPI) — The stalwart lads of St. George beat Cattle Creek, 480-392, in a 52-hour softball game this weekend, despite a catcher who got convulsions and a pitcher who couldn't raise his arm.

It was an epic renewal of the rivalry between the two towns, last expressed with a 1937 game which ran to 350 innings.

This year's contest ground to a halt late Saturday night after 400 innings, and the players dragged themselves, or were dragged, off to their beds.

The game started Thursday evening. As it wore on beyond the 24-hour mark, several men dropped from exhaustion. St. George catcher Ronnie Crook, who had belted 17 home runs, fell in convulsions at the 29-hour point. Ambulance crewmen, standing by, revived him.

During the late inning Saturday, a local radio station broadcast urgent appeals for more volunteers. The reserves were getting thin.

St. George pitcher Dick Sutcliffe, trying to break a record of 230 innings pitched by one man in the 1937 game, found that his arm wouldn't move after 228 innings.

Stone Johnson Football Victim

... CHIEFS' ROOKIE DIES

Wichita, Kan. (AP) — Stone Johnson, promising rookie for the Kansas City Chiefs and a runner for the United States in the 1960 Olympics, died Sunday night of a broken neck suffered in an exhibition football game eight days ago.

An attending physician attributed death to a fracture of the fifth cervical vertebra of the neck and spinal cord damage.

The physician, who declined use of his name, said an autopsy also revealed a blood clot in a lung artery. While this was a complication unknown previously, the physician said it was not the cause of death.

The 23-year-old halfback had been in serious condition since suffering a fractured neck vertebra in the game against the Houston Oilers.

New York (AP) — The New York Yankees blew a 6-0 lead and delayed their American League pennant-clinching ceremony one day Monday, as the Kansas City Athletics swarmed from behind for a 7-6 victory with six runs in the seventh inning and an squeeze bunt.

The Yankees, only four victories away from their fourth straight flag, aided the Athletics in both innings.

With Jim Bouton sailing along with a shutout and his 20th victory seemingly in his grasp, the Yankees collapsed in the seventh.

Bouton gave up a walk and a single and was replaced by Steve Hamilton, who contributed three walks and a two-run single to Wayne Causey. Hal Reniff relieved and

Teen-Ager Cleared In Omaha Shooting

Omaha (P) — Acting Douglas County Judge Edward Garvey dismissed Monday a charge of manslaughter against Philip Moulder, 16, of Phoenix, Ariz.

Moulder, who was visiting at the home of his great-uncle, R. L. Hatcher, was charged in the death of Gary Raymond Teply, 19, of Hayes Center, who had been employed in Omaha.

Young Moulder had told authorities that vandals had invaded his great-uncle's estate several times during the summer and that on Sunday morning, Sept. 1, he was twice aroused by intruders.

Threw A Rock
He said that the first time he threw a rock through the windshield of a car near the estate gate. The second time, he said, he saw a group of youths armed with stones and bottles walking up the driveway. He said he fired several warning shots with a .30 caliber carbine and as the youths fled in a car, he fired three

Experimental Pooling Of Bids Vetoed By Beatrice Council

Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Beatrice — An experimental pooling of pavement bids aimed at cutting construction costs failed to survive even its first try by a frustrated Beatrice City Council.

Two hours of squabbling over a pair of bids — the $149,500 low, just $478 below the other — finally ended in a call for new figures on the odd individual basis. Involved are seven paving districts and two of re-paving.

Final action to scrap the mass bids and readvertise came on a 6-1 vote despite insistence by Mayor W. W. Cook Sr. that contractors might be discouraged from future bidding. The action apparently reflected a general Council feeling that even a higher over-all bid would be preferable to significant cost discrepancies from one district to another.

These differences first were brought out as Councilman Russ Arthur tried unsuccessfully to have the second-low bid ($149,978) Roberts Construction Co., Lincoln) accepted as "the best-balanced of the two."

Councilman Millard Henderson pointed out, however, that there naturally would be high and low variations in either this bid or the low ones submitted by Jack L. Butler Co. of Fremont ($149,500).

JOYRIDE AT THE SWITCHES

Larry Jones, a 12-year-old without any arms, blithely went joyriding in a Santa Fe switch engine through the big railroad yards in the Argentine section of Kansas City, Kan., Monday. As he did so, the control tower frantically switched the engine back and forth. Larry's ride came to an end when a switchman managed to hop onto the engine and stop it. Larry worked the throttle (left) and brake (right) with his feet. At times his speed hit 35 miles per hour in the busy yards.

Cuban Rum Millionaire In Brazil Longing For Castro To Get Boot

Recife, Brazil (P) — Cuban rum millionaire Jose M. Bosch has found a temporary headquarters here for his vast beverage empire.

His ambition is to return to a Cuba without Fidel Castro.

"The happiest day of my life will be the day of liberation of Cuba," he says. "And this day will come."

Bosch is trying to hasten the day. He says he is pouring money into a new Cuban revolutionary organization which will unite Cuban exiles now living scattered throughout the hemisphere under one central leadership.

Donated To Castro

Asked about his previous connections with Castro and the sums he donated to Castro in the early days of his regime, Bosch replied:

"Up until 1959 when he asked me to accompany him to the United States as president of Cuba's largest (Bacardi) Beverages) industry, I didn't even know him.

"I had no other choice but to accept the invitation. On the trip, the only time I talked to him I was convinced he was a Communist and hated the United States.

"Castro used my name as if I were his friend. For example they said I gave him $600,000. It isn't true. I had to help him because 85% of the Cuban people were with him and I sold 56% of the beer and 80% of all the other alcoholic beverages consumed in Cuba.

Castro Lied

"Actually, every time I gave $1,000 to Castro he said

Thief Takes $650 In Clothes From Autos On Campus

Two University of Nebraska students moving in to fraternity housing on the campus reported to Lincoln police the theft of clothing valued at about $650.

The clothing, mostly men's sport jackets, suits and shirts, was taken from two cars parked in front of 625 No. 16th.

The students, Joe Colgan of Omaha and Gary Anderson of Hastings, told police the thief broke open vent windows to gain entrance to the locked vehicles.

Answers to commonly asked questions about advertising

Do the famous people who endorse products in advertising really use them?

Advertisers, like ordinary mortals, occasionally have to learn their lessons the hard way. When Grace Kelly was a movie star, her endorsement appeared on a facial product. A reporter who asked if she did in truth use the brand was told by Miss Kelly that neither that brand "nor any other of the kind ever touches my face." The comment created a sensation when it was printed. Advertising men never have forgotten it.

Actually, there is nothing to prevent an advertiser from getting an endorsement from a person who does not use his product. But particularly since the Grace Kelly incident, most advertisers have tried to avoid the risk of ridicule or un believability by being extremely careful in their choice of testimonials. They seek personalities who already do use or have agreed to use the products they endorse.

You may raise your eyebrows when you see a baseball hero endorsing quite a number of products in a given season. It is precisely the public's incredulity that is putting the skids under this kind of puffery.

Personal endorsements are fine when legitimate. Otherwise, they have no right to be used.

Prison Guard Loses Job In Kirby Escape

State Penal Complex Warden Maurice Sigler Monday dismissed prison guard Archie Cornelius for not following the orders of deputy warden John Greenholtz in guarding Ronald Eugene Kirby, 21, Omaha.

Kirby escaped from the custody of Cornelius after being allowed to attend his father's funeral in Omaha Saturday.

Sigler said that Cornelius told him that he removed the restraints from Kirby and that Kirby made his escape as they started to get in a car after the services at a funeral home.

Sigler said Kirby was a "close custody" prisoner and that it is Penal Complex policy to keep such men in restraints whenever they are taken outside the Penitentiary. The written prison order for Kirby's transportation to Omaha in Cornelius' custody said "with restraints," according to Sigler.

The warden explained that there are four classes of prisoners: minimum or trusty, medium, close custody and maximum. A minimum custody prisoner would not have been in restraints, and if they were used on a medium custody prisoner they probably would have been removed for funeral services, he said.

"We never take restraints off a close custody prisoner" when they are outside, Sigler said. Maximum custody prisoners are taken outside the prison walls only on court order, he added.

U.S. Thwarts Cuba Propaganda Circus

New York (UPI) — The State Department has banned American attendance at an international congress in Havana to block Cuban attempts to make it an anti-U.S. propaganda circus, it was learned Monday.

The congress is that of the International Union of Architects (UIA) scheduled to be held in the Cuban capital Sept. 29-Oct. 3. The Castro regime had claimed strong U.S. support for the congress which, it said, would draw 2,000 delegates from 80 countries.

The U.S. blocked any American participation in the congress by notifying would-be delegates their passports would not be validated for the trip to the Communist-controlled island.

Fifty-nine Americans who juked to Cuba in July in defiance of a U.S. travel ban now face federal prosecution involving cancellation of their passports and possible jail and fine penalties.

Bay of Pigs Monument

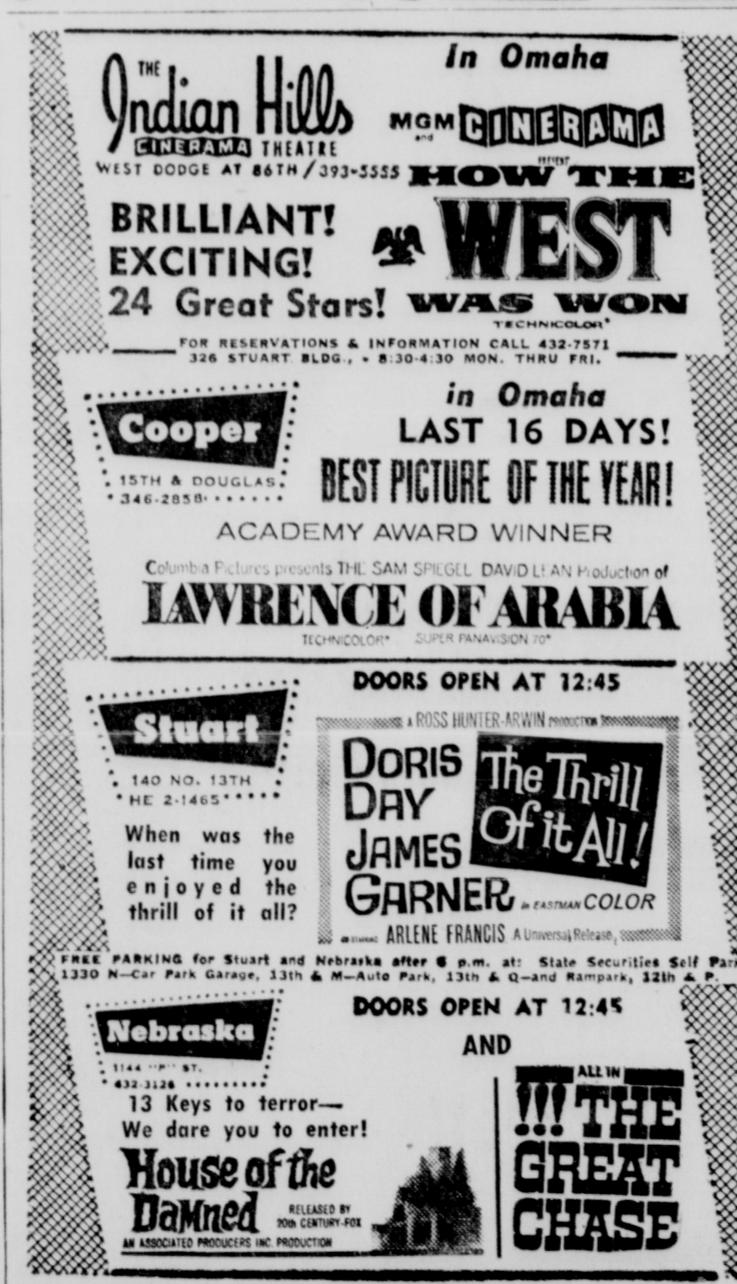

Principal objection to the scheduled congress was a Bay of Pigs "victory monument" contest billed by the Castro government as its main attraction. Delegates were promised a "full briefing" on the abortive 1961 U.S.-backed invasion.

The ban also was believed based on the nonrepresentative character of the Cuban hosts for the congress. An estimated 350 of Cuba's known architects have fled the country into exile since 1959.

ILL HEALTH FORCES END TO PROTEST

Olympia, Wash. (UPI)—Grandma Peggie Goodman's wheelchair campout on the state capitol steps in an effort to get more welfare money ended abruptly Monday under doctor's orders.

Mrs. Goodman, 59, was taken to a hospital by ambulance for a checkup and rest, saying "I'm all done in."

A sit-in companion, Gary Douglas, 33, was taken back to his Everett, Wash., home by automobile.

The Seattle grandmother had been parked under Gov. Albert Rosellini's office window since last Wednesday night, except for rest breaks. Douglas, also in a wheelchair, joined her Friday morning.

Mrs. Goodman wanted Rosellini to call a special legislative session to restore 12% trimmed from welfare benefits over the past three years. She's getting $113 monthly now.

A doctor said Mrs. Goodman was worn out and probably would be sent home to Seattle later this week.

Armored Viet Nam Unit Slays 80 Reds

Go Cong, South Viet Nam (UPI)—A Vietnamese armored unit plowed through Mekong Delta paddy fields alive with communist guerrillas Monday and killed about 80 of them.

Newsmen flown into the battle area from Saigon in mid-afternoon joined troops wading across paddy fields toward a set of guerrilla strategic hamlets beside the South China Sea extremity of the Mekong.

They passed one guerrilla strongpoint which had been overrun earlier in the day by an armored unit. Seventeen guerrilla bodies were lying around a burned out haystack. American advisers told newsmen Guerrilla Battalion 261 had attacked three outposts in the area the previous night, blasting the outposts' towers with mortars. Reinforcements were rushed to the region from My Tho.

Nab Russian Rifle

The firefight continued for three hours from 11 a.m. By late afternoon government troops had captured a recoilless rifle, several Viet Cong flags, heavy mortar ammunition and several rifles, including one of Russian design of a type manufactured recently in Red China.

Vietnamese fighter bombers were making continual strafing runs of suspected guerrilla entrenchments late in the day. Napalm smoke billowed into the air and rocket fire resounded across the paddy fields.

Johnston said the Legion has felt the need for a long time for a youth activity center and as such we have made inquiries of the park board and we have found that a possibility exists that such a center may be considered on Rogers Tract.

In the event these plans develop, the Legion will lend its whole-hearted support to any program which would serve to promote that end.

Johnston said he did not wish to comment further on the plans, now under negotiation, but did indicate that the ideal for which the Legion was striving would include facilities for various types of athletic and social activities.

Miller Urges Staff To 'Tighten Belts'

State Education Commissioner Dr. Floyd A. Miller Monday urged Department of Education staff members to tighten their financial belts so that higher salary schedules can be adopted for department personnel.

Miller made the comment at his monthly staff meeting in which he stated he favors higher salary increases than the 3.5% hike recommended by the Legislature's Budget Committee.

The State Board of Education is expected to determine its policy on salary matters when it meets in Lincoln Sept. 17. It has already tentatively decided to follow its own salary schedule if it appears there will be sufficient funds.

Miller said the board and department feel they have statutory authority to make "our own sound and solid decisions."

On another matter, Miller urged staff members to apply for membership in the Nebraska State Education Association (NSEA).

He described the NSEA as a "stouthanded" organization, and one which "deserves the support of every member of the Education Department."

"There are those who don't want a strong education department," Miller said. "They have a solid hate for our approach."

Despite this, he added, the department "must continue to point the way by outlining objectives that have the education of the children of Nebraska at heart."

Stryker Takes Governor's Office—But Not Chair

State Sen. Harold Stryker of Rising City moved into the office of Gov. Frank Morrison Monday for a two-day tenure as acting governor, but refused physically to occupy the swivel chair behind the big executive desk which Morrison normally occupies.

Newsmen calling on Stryker in the governor's office found him seated at the end of the desk, instead of behind it.

He indicated he thought it would be presumptuous of him to use the governor's chair.

Just in Case

"Gov. Morrison is still the governor of the state and that's his chair," he commented. "I'm here just in case I'm needed."

Gov. Morrison was in Washington Monday and will attend a dinner for industrialists and business leaders in Chicago Tuesday before returning to Nebraska Tuesday night.

Sen. Stryker was called in as acting governor because the next two successors-in-line, Lt. Gov. Dwight Burney and Speaker William Moulton of Omaha, were out of the state.

Burney was in Japan and Sen. Moulton was in Canada on a fishing trip.

Stryker got telephoned word of his new duties at his farm two miles out of Rising City Sunday. He said he had planned to do some ground preparation for wheat seeding Monday but he said it wouldn't hurt to postpone the work for a couple of days.

No Action Planned

The acting governor said he planned no particular official actions but would ask the Safety Patrol and state departments "to inform me of any emergency that might arise so that I can get in touch with Gov. Morrison."

Stryker also used the governor's prerogative of voicing a word of welcome to tourists using Nebraska highways. He said he had noticed many apparently home-bound vacationers on the roads, and said he is inviting them to observe traffic signs, drive safely and return home.

Sen. Stryker, like Gov. Morrison, is a Democrat.

Responding to questions, Stryker said he has no present plans to seek the governorship by election but did not rule out the possibility that this might happen some day.

Might File

"I have many plans for the future," he said, "and definitely you'd never want to rule out any opportunity. If some time in the future I might have the opportunity to serve Nebraska and serve it well as governor, I might file."

Civil Rights Marcher Will Speak At YWCA

Miss Kay Thompson, executive director of the Malone Community Center, will speak at an "Open Facts Forum" Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the YWCA.

Miss Thompson recently returned from Washington, D.C., where she participated in the civil rights march.

The forum is one of a series sponsored by the Lancaster County Democratic Women's Club and is open to the public.
